

ROBERT DUVALL MUSIC LENDING LIBRARY

Robert Duvall was a long time conductor of the Bellevue Washington Community Band and public school music instructor. With his involvement in music over the years, he acquired a large collection of band music. On his passing, it was his wish to have his band library made available to Community Bands as a lending library. His wish is soon to come about through the work of Glenn Tadina and several members from the Salem Concert Band and Portland Metro Band who have diligently worked on the cataloguing project. The project was left in the hands of Glenn Tadina as requested by Robert Duvall's daughter, Amy D.

The Duvall Music Lending Library is about 75% catalogued. The library hosts 2,200 + titles of concert selections and marches which fills eleven four drawer file cabinets and several cardboard boxes. Much of the library is Out of Print material. If you would like to help with the cataloguing, let us know and we will contact you with information as to how you can get involved.

Some of the process of administering the library is still being developed by Amy and Glenn. Funds are currently short for the purchase some needed supplies to complete the project. Contact Glenn or Amy if you are inclined to make a donation. We will also accept band selections you may have and like to add them to the Duvall library.

Although we are not quite set to put the lending library into full swing, let us know if you are looking for a special title. We will do our best to try and locate your request.
